Career Summary

Sarah Sanders brings more than 26 years of experience in marketing, advertising, operations, and commercial real estate. As Vice President of Operations for the Office Team, she oversees marketing strategy, transaction management, client services, and operational execution, helping ensure a seamless experience for clients from project inception through closing.

After beginning her career in the San Francisco technology industry in 1999, Sarah developed extensive expertise in marketing, communications, and business development before transitioning into commercial real estate in 2005. Since then, she has played an integral role in supporting brokerage teams, enhancing business operations, and driving successful transaction outcomes.

Sarah leads the coordination and execution of marketing initiatives designed to strengthen market visibility, promote new business opportunities, and effectively position clients, properties, and services within the marketplace. Working closely with brokerage, design, and marketing teams, she helps develop strategic campaigns that support leasing, investment, and sales objectives across a wide range of commercial real estate assignments.

Known for her organization, responsiveness, and attention to detail, Sarah oversees the many moving parts required to successfully advance complex commercial real estate transactions. Her responsibilities include coordinating feasibility studies, conducting market research, assisting with property valuations and transaction documentation, and ensuring consistent communication throughout the process.

Clients and colleagues value Sarah's ability to combine strategic marketing expertise with operational leadership and transaction management. Her commitment to service, efficiency, and execution helps create a seamless client experience while supporting the successful completion of every assignment.
